Born and raised in Columbus, completed Pre-Med degree at Notre Dame where he first met Jim Cooper.

Sergeant-At-Arms: Pat Jeffries fined Babette Wofter & Beth Graff, badge exchanges; Dale Lewellen & Mark Mitchell, 3-minute speeches; Steve Ehret, quoted in paper about Downtown construction; Jim Matesich, welcome back after long drought of attendance and for Budweiser Clydesdale event. Jim gave praise to guest, Kelly Dyar, who organized the Budweiser event and then suggested she pay the fine!; Marcia Downes had event at Works to view eclipse; Don Hill, 63 years of marriage; Tom Brannon, won $500 at Elks, but wasn't there to collect.

Program: Marcia Downes did a "bait and switch" and introduced The Works new STEM leader, Dr. Meghan Federer to speak.

Dr. Federer began by expressing that ever since she joined The Works, they have been most focused on the STEM pipeline and how important that education is. She questioned the crowd on what they think The Works does and exclaimed that they are more than a museum, and more than just educators. They inspire tens of thousands of youth with over 50,000 students touched just last year. They feel strongly that learning comes from doing. They want the students to question and to get hands on with the information.

The Works is also focused on the "History of Innovation" and they like to use the rich history of Licking County as examples. They encourage students to focus on the "how," not the "why."

Meghan went on to explain, in detail, why STEM education is so important now, but even more so as we look into the future. Almost all of the 30 fastest-growing occupations in the next decade will require at least some background in STEM. Despite increased effort, women have seen no improvement in STEM fields since 2001. Other groups have actually gone down. The only significant increases have been seen in white and Asian males.

Meghan took a few questions from the crowd and wrapped up her speech. Marcia took a moment to commend Doug Ute and his team for focusing on STEM within the Newark School Systems and for all of their support they give to The Works.

Thought of the week: "We will always have STEM with us. Some things will drop out of the public eye and will go away, but there will always be science, engineering, and technology. And there will always, always be mathematics." – Katherine Johnson

Raffle: No claimed winner, so weekly pot went to Polio.
